

Raw BaoMax™

Wild African Tropical Super-Food, Nutrient-Rich

BaoMax is the ideal naturally tart drink mix made from the tropical fruit wild baobab, along with organic Amazonian cocona. Baobab is a delicious, high-nutrition African fruit with great historical use. Baobab has even been called the Vitamin Tree by National Geographic writers and referred to as the “Tree of Life.” Cocona has been extensively used by the people of the Amazon. It’s rare, nutritious, and wild. Highly regarded for their nutritional value, both baobab and cocona are commonly used for native medicines, food, and cosmetic purposes.

BaoMax has a unique tropical flavor, combining the citrus lime taste of cocona with the flavor of baobab, described as similar to a pear or even vanilla. This light, natural taste makes it ideal for all ages, and it can be easily blended into any beverage for a nice boost. It also mixes well with water, creating natural, tropical lemonade.

Although it is a very delicious combination, it is in the nutritional content that the true value of BaoMax is realized. It has been shown that a low intake of dietary fiber is a common occurrence in the modern diet, and this low intake has had a disastrous effect on the health of many. Baobab is up to 56 percent fiber, which is why it is the ideal way to meet this need for more dietary fiber. The significant source of fiber in baobab is pectin, a powerful, fibrous material that is of great benefit to the gut. Pectin is a soluble fiber, which allows it to bind cholesterol and carbohydrates. It is for this reason, along with the spectrum of nutrients contained in it, that so many attribute powerful health benefits to baobab.

Baobab fruit is a potent source of other wild nutrients including vitamin C, B vitamins, iron, and potassium. Cocona, much like baobab, is a treasure chest of nutrients including fiber, calcium, phosphorus, carotene, iron, and B vitamins. North American Herb & Spice preserves the raw nature of the baobab and cocona used in BaoMax throughout production, thus ensuring the maximum nutrient density. This is why so many who try BaoMax are amazed at how great they feel.
