This powerful natural combination assists the body in removing noxious poisons. The spices in this blend are pesticide, herbicide, and GMO-free. Only pure wild contamination-free sources are used.

The history of cumin can be traced back over 5,000 years, when the ancient Egyptians used it as a spice in food as well as in the mummification process. It was also used by the Greeks and Romans for medicinal purposes. According to the Bible, cumin had such a powerful medicinal value that it was used as currency. It is a potent antioxidant capable of scavenging free radicals, due to its high phenolic content.

The first mention of dandelion as a medicine comes from the works of the Islamic physicians of the tenth and eleventh centuries, who referred to it as a wild endive. Studies show that dandelion is a rich source of vitamins and minerals as well as potent phytochemicals. The leaves have the highest vitamin A content of all greens. Dandelion also has notable amounts of choline and lecithin.

The P73 oregano is a rich source of phenols, esters, and terpenes, which are easily absorbed. This wild oregano also has significant bioavailability of calcium, magnesium, phosphorous, and zinc to help provide for bodily needs.

Turmeric, with its brilliant yellow color, has been used as a natural medicine and flavoring since 600 B.C. It contains powerful antioxidant phytonutrients known as curcuminoids and has been used in both Indian (Ayurvedic) and Chinese medicine for thousands of years.

Rosemary is also known for its powerful antioxidants. Usage of rosemary dates back to 500 B.C., when it was consumed as a culinary and medicinal herb by the ancient Greeks and Romans. In the Middle Ages it was carried in small sachets and inhaled while walking through plague-ridden areas and was also tossed onto fires to purify the air. It has significant cleansing properties.
