

100% Wild Turmeric SUPERCRITICAL EXTRACT-PLUS

Turmerol is the only whole food, wild turmeric supplement available. All other turmeric supplements are farm-raised. Plus, many such supplements are heavily contaminated with noxious solvents, including hexane, which are used during extraction. Turmerol is a potent blend of wild turmeric oil and wild turmeric extract, plus oils of ginger and wild oregano. These oils are added to stimulate absorption of the large curcuminoid molecules. This powerful combination provides the fullest complement of curcuminoids, curcumin, and turmerol available. That's why Turmerol has the potency to support the entire body, especially the muscles and joints but also the nerves and much more. A number of scientific studies have established turmeric as a potent aid to the health of all cells. Turmeric is one of the most researched spices known and at North American Herb & Spice only the most bioavailable oil/resin blend is used. These oils/resins are extracted exclusively with cold-extraction, including the use of CO₂ (supercritical). Our ginger is also supercritically extracted. Turmerol is free of adulteration and chemical contamination making it the ideal turmeric supplement for optimal health.

The medicinal value of turmeric has been known for thousands of years. Turmeric and, more specifically, the rhizome or underground root was cultivated not only for its well-known medicinal properties but also as a brilliant yellow/orange dye, which an essential element in ancient traditions. It was an incredibly important spice which was used throughout the ancient world because of its numerous health benefits. The ancient Chinese cultivated it after the introduction from India and it is still a central part of Chinese medicine. In the 18th century it then was spread throughout Africa and then later to Jamaica.

It was not until the 20th Century that European and American researchers began to comprehend the full power of this spice. A search of the Internet demonstrates countless articles and scientific studies on this spice; search for yourself to determine its powers. It is clear there is great benefit to turmeric and additional research is proving this every day. North American Herb & Spice has maintained the true synergistic benefit by incorporating the whole phytochemical complex in Turmerol. This allows for the maximum absorption of the curcuminoids, curcumin, and turmerol.

It is critical that synthetic curcuminoids, derived from petroleum-based materials, and other adulterants be avoided completely. Only 100% wild and organic plants extracted without those contaminants, such as Turmerol, should be used to ensure absorption and benefit.

Turmerol is a blend of CO₂ extracted turmeric with a proprietary wild turmeric resin. The CO₂ extraction ensures that all the naturally occurring nutrients are extracted with the oil. The resin is a potent extract of the nutrients along with a small amount of oil. When blended, it creates a super nutritionally dense oil not found in any other turmeric supplement. Since it is a spice extract Turmerol can be consumed daily. It can also be added to food.
